Written correspondence

Policy

All written correspondence should reflect the attitude of excellence that The Travel Curators wishes to convey to all its customers. The Travel Curator adopts a plain English principle, using correct spelling, grammar and punctuation in all documents and refers to the Brand and Style Guidelines with regard to format.

Procedures

Ensure that all written correspondence reflects the 5C's of business etiquette:

- Clear - the message is understandable to the reader. The ideas are presented logically and the language is appropriate
- Concise - use short paragraphs, get quickly to the point and convey a positive attitude
- Correct – make sure that all information is confirmed, spelling and punctuation checked and any errors are corrected
- Courteous – Use a polite tone throughout
- Complete – Give the document a final check prior to signing

For consistency, please ensure you:

- Provide both an electronic and hard copy for all outgoing correspondence and file according to departmental procedures.
- Print all drafts on recycled paper whenever possible.
- Use email where appropriate – for correspondence to conserve paper and to achieve rapid delivery.
- Use the correct form of address for all correspondence. All staff have access to the client lists, names of suppliers and stores which lists the preferred titles and correct spelling of names.

General style guidelines

Policy

The goal of The Travel Curators is to be the most trusted and respected travel agency in the Asia Pacific Region. To provide a service that excites and delights our clients, every time. We aim to generate positive reviews, client referrals and secure repeat business. In order to maintain a professional and consistent image, staff must ensure that The Travel Curators style guidelines are applied to all correspondence and documents.

All Travel Curators staff will:

- use the company letterhead on all outgoing business letters
- use memorandum forms for all internal memos
- use the standard format where appropriate (see sample layouts provided)
- ensure the client number is included on all documents
- use the closing notation of 'Yours faithfully' in letters; however, when writing to clients, the closing notation of 'Yours in travel' may be used
- spell-check and proofread carefully each document before printing
- ensure that all documents are electronically saved in the appropriate folder
- print all draft copies on recycled paper
- return draft copies to the writer for checking
- edit the checked documents, save and print
- return the final draft to the writer for checking and signing
- ensure that longer reports are bound.
